Mango Butter is an excellent moisturizer with natural emollient properties. It is reputed to be useful for treating burns, stretch marks, reducing scars, healing wounds, smoothing wrinkles, and helping skin regeneration.

Coconut Oil is unusually rich in Lauric acid which is recognized for its unique antibacterial, and antiviral properties. It is rare in the history of medicine to find substances without toxicity or even harmful side effects and still have such useful and powerful properties like the ones found in coconut.

Carnauba Wax, known as the queen of waxes, is the hardest natural wax. Its lustrous composition makes it the leading choice for cosmetic applications. It is used for its emollient and moisturizing properties.

Kukuinut oil, used by Hawaiians for centuries, to protect the skin from salt water, harsh sun and drying winds. Excellent for dry skin, psoriasis, eczema or severe skin conditions. This light natural oil is used in high quality cosmetic preparations for its ability to quickly penetrate the skin.

White Clay has a very mild nurturing action improving the overall texture of the skin and is particularly good to use on sensitive skin. Soft and silky, it is the most gentle of all the clays.

Olive Oil it is a favourite on both dry and irritated skin. Called "liquid gold" in ancient Greece, it's rich and moisturizing benefits were primary elements in keeping the skin young and healthy looking.

Ocean Spray was part of the Saanich First Nation's culture on Vancouver Island. All parts of the shrub were used, from making tools to preparing poultices and infusions for treating burns or preparing eyewashes. It is a good tonic for the skin.

Camellia Seed Oil is one of Nature's best kept secrets. An excellent antioxidant, protecting the skin from free radical damage. High in Omega-3 fatty acids and Alpha Linoleic acid. This wonderful oil is a must for normal to aging skin to help restructure and moisturize.

Castor Oil acts as a humectant with soothing and emollient actions. It also serves as a protective barrier on the skin against harsh environmental conditions.

Sassolite, the mineral form of Boric acid is a mild acid often used as an antiseptic for minor burns or cuts. It is also mixed into dressings or salves due to its antifungal properties.
