Origin of the Thieves Blend

Like any good tall tales, it's mythical but set during actual historical events, During the Black Plague four brothers began robbing the dead.

At first, they were largely ignored as everyone knew they would eventually pay the price by catching the plague themselves but to everyone's surprise they managed to avoid catching the plague and kept robbing graves, amassing a great deal of wealth. They became legendary and everyone wanted to know how they managed to avoid getting sick.

Years later, when finally captured, they were asked for their secret and after much debating they agreed to share their secret in return for their pardon.

These men were the offspring of a perfumer and herbalist they learned about essential oils from their parents thru their childhood.

They knew these oils would protect them so they rubbed them on their bodies and used them to clean anything they brought back.

Genie In a Bottle's own "Thieves Spirit" is based on this ancient recipe, the ingredients used are organic and of the highest quality, they are recognized for their cleansing abilities, antimicrobial and antibacterial properties, also known to be antifungal and helpful at destroying mold, all with a pleasant and comforting aroma.
